INSTALLATION INSTRUCTIONS

For any curtain heading you've ordered, you should always identify the left and right side curtain before starting the hanging process. If there is a seam in the curtain it should be placed closest to the curtain track or pole end.

Top Tip: It makes it easier if there are two people hanging the curtains. One person can hook the curtain onto the track or pole, and the other person can take the weight of the curtain. If you're on your own, take the weight of the curtain by placing it over your shoulder.

Eyelet Curtains

Step 1: Thread your curtains onto the pole
Feed each eyelet over the curtain pole. Make sure the leading and outside edges of the curtain face inwards towards the window

Step 2: Secure the outer edge
Position the final eyelet between the pole bracket and the finial.

Pinch Pleat Curtains

Step 1: Choose your hook position
Firstly, you will need to decide where the curtain will be hung from the pole or track. If a pole is being used, we'd recommend you position the hook towards the top. If you're fitting to a track, position the hook towards the middle or the bottom.

Once the hooks are in position, you can then guide them onto the rings on your track or pole.

The hooks slide down the plastic retainer to the desired position. The hook can only move downwards. If you pull the hook too far, pull the hook off the bottom of the retainer and slide it back on at the top.

Step 2: Hang your Curtains
Make sure you have the same number of track gliders or pole rings as you have pleats, then simply attach each curtain hook.

For curtain poles: Attach the final hook between the bracket and the finial.

For curtain tracks: Attach the final hook to the fixed glider at the end of the track.

Pencil Pleat Curtains

Please note: Pencil pleat curtains arrive flat (not gathered). This helps reduce creasing in the fabric during transportaion.

Please note: Pencil pleat curtains are not supplied with curtain hooks, as standard.

Step 1: Check the width
We recommend measuring half the pole/track width, this will determine the finished size of each curtain (once the cords on the tape are gathered together). For a fuller look, make each curtain a little wider than half the width.

Step 2: Gather the Curtains
Before you start to gather your curtains, all of the cords on one side of the curtain tape need to be knotted together. If this end isn't knotted together, the cords will pull through the tape and the gathering process will fail. We'd recommend that this knotted end is on the outside edge side of the curtain.

It will take a bit of time to gather the curtains but spending the time to do it properly will make your curtains look better when hung. Pull the untied end until each curtain is the required width, making sure the pleats are even as you go along.

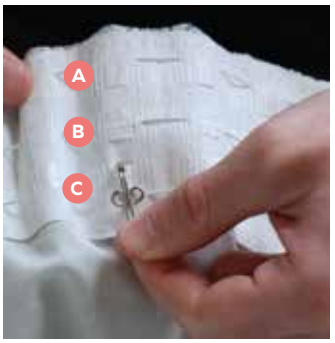

This end will need to be loosely tied off too. Never cut the cords, tuck the excess neatly behind the tape.

Step 3: Inserting the hooks

1. Count the number of gliders or rings that you have on your track or pole then divide by half. This is the number of hooks you need to attach to each curtain

2. There are 3 pockets on the back of the curtain tape to attach the curtain hooks. If fitting to a pole use pocket A. If fitting to a track use B or C pockets. When fitting to a pole the curtain should hang below the pole and when fitting to a track the top of the curtain should sit parallel to the top of the track.

We recommend fitting the hooks 4-5 pockets apart across the width of the curtain (depending on how many hooks are required per curtain). Make sure you place a hook on each edge of the curtain.

3. Locate the curtain ring or glider and hook the curtain into place. If fitting to a pole, attach one hook to a ring positioned between the finial and the bracket. This will help to keep the curtain in place when drawn closed.

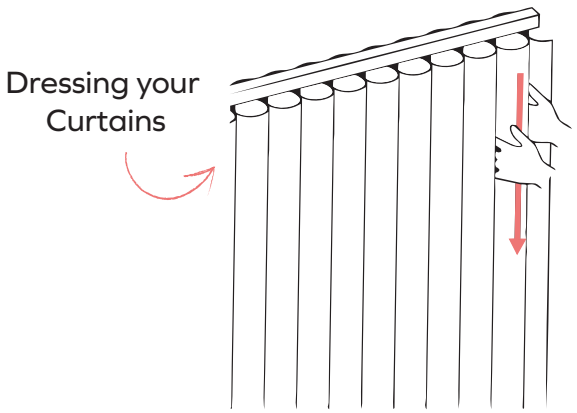

4. If you're happy with the width of your curtains, securely knot off the loose cords. If you would like a little more fullness on your curtains, carefully untie the knotted end and pull to the new desired with. Once happy, knot off the cords and neatly tuck them behind the curtain tape. Do not cut them.

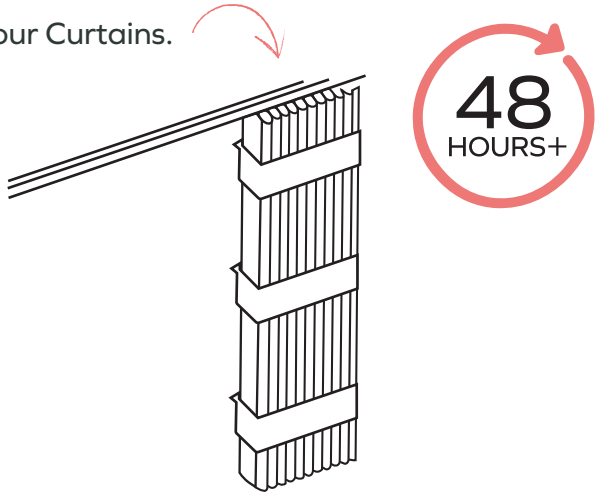

INSTALLATION INSTRUCTIONS

Dressing your Curtains

When your Curtains are first hung, carefully use a steamer or steam setting on your iron to gently steam out any creases in the fabric. Be very careful not to touch the fabric while doing this. We recommend you tie back your curtains for at least 48 hours to suitably dress and train your curtains.
Please note: Steaming can also affect the final length of the curtains. Some fabrics need creases to be fully steamed out, which may cause the fabric to drop. Other fabrics may contract slightly during transit and may require steaming.

Top Tip: Use cling film or remnants of fabrics to tie back your Curtains.
